In 1977, the moon landing is remembered as one of the most spectacular events in the history of the planet. But in 1981, the first major public event of the century was barely known to most of us, and not many photos of it were taken. On that day, the Intelsat satellite began its long journey into orbit around the earth. This event was deemed so significant that it was only afforded about six minutes of coverage on its initial run, which was interrupted by the start of the evening news. More follows... "Year by year, they hatch at the rate of about a dozen every day," said Dr. Damon Matthews, of the United States Geological Survey. Matthews and his colleagues study the number of Easter egg tarantulas in the United States. "Birds Â that go in flight look for secluded areas and then they're happy as can be," said Matthews. "And so the tarantula that goes into that secluded area is going to be happy. It's the perfect antidote. It's the perfect solution to a bad day." Fox News has obtained exclusive video of workers at the U.S. Labor Department's passport division who claimed they were denied entry to the White House 50b96ab0b6
